NO LARVAE
 IN BANANAS

difference can be detected only with the aid of a microscope, but the important fact is that the more numerous variety does not transmit yellow fever.

"I have examined banana plants from many sections of the city," said Mr. Swezey. "I have been up in Pauoa, where they are being cut down in such vast numbers, and there I failed to find a single wriggler of any kind in all the banana plants I examined."

I have investigated the plants growing in the Punahou and Makiki sections, with the same result. The banana plants in Kaimuki failed to yield a single specimen.

"I went away up toward the head of Palolo valley, where I found daylight mosquitoes in abundance. There the banana grows wild in great quantities. There is plenty of moisture and, if a mosquito would breed in a banana plant anywhere, it surely ought to be there. But, though I examined a great many of the plants very carefully, I could not find a mosquito wriggler of any kind."

"While we were making our examination of the plants, daylight mosquitoes simply swarmed around us.
 We had to keep slapping all the time to keep from being badly bitten. I did find many breeding places for the insect, but they were not in the bananas. They were in holes in the rocks, in the stream that flows through the valley, in an old kerosene can and such like places."

"The daylight mosquitoes I found in Palolo valley were of the Stegomyia scutellaria variety. I did not find a single calopus."

"In my opinion the gravity of the situation has been considerably exaggerated. It is possible that we do have the Stegomysia calopus here, but it is evident that this variety of the insect does not exist in any great numbers. It is the scutellaria that is so abundant and that has evidently given rise to such grave apprehensions. I consider it unfortunate that the error should have been made, and that the descriptions sent out of the mosquito that is supposed to do the damage is that of the harmless scutellaria."

"It seems to me, too, that entirely too much attention is being devoted to the destruction of the banana and not enough to other things that we know constitute breeding places for the mosquito."

"But I do think it is a mighty good thing that a determined effort is being made to exterminate all kinds of mosquitoes. Whether there is any danger of yellow fever or not, the city will be much better off without the insects."

Mr. Swezey says that he has not as yet progressed very far in his mosquito investigations, compared with the progress he hopes to make. His future research will probably be as thorough as possible, and when he gets through we shall have some real and accurate knowledge of the pest, its habits, life history and prevalence.

Meanwhile the entomologist is still anxiously searching for a specimen of the yellow fever mosquito and is eagerly tearing apart banana plants in an endeavor to find some of the countless wrigglers the inept inspectors are reporting.

The Objection
Came Too Late

The supreme court handed down a decision this morning, in the matter of K. Yamamoto versus Yoshimasa Sukurai, in which it sustains the district magistrate of Waikiki in overruling the defendant's motion to vacate and set aside a sheriff's sale of property belonging to him.

The grounds of the motion to vacate the sale were, in substance, that the notices of sale were fatally irregular and misleading; that the officer executing the writ sold the property after advertising it for only nineteen days instead of thirty days as directed; that by reason of these irregularities in the advertisement and sale the prices realized were disproportionate to the value of the property sold and that the levy was not justified in law.

The supreme court holds that "it does not necessarily follow that the sale of property made under a writ of execution upon defective or insufficient notice shall be void. This is a question to be considered in each case as it arises. In this case the objection made by the defendant comes too late." He should not have waited until the property was sold. "By his acts or rather his failure to act, he estop-ped himself from attacking the validity of the sale."

Court Notes

 pany, one of the respondents to the petition for an injunction brought by

STRAUS NEARLY LOSES DOLLAR

What might easily have been a distressing accident occurred near the police station about one p. m. today.

Leon Straus, the well-known criminal lawyer, had just received a dollar as a retaining fee in a police court case and was tripping gaily along the sidewalk, cradling "Fire-tree, three-ll-ray," and tossing the coin up in the air and catching it out of sheer blitheness of spirit.

Suddenly someone passing by mentioned the name of "Phoney" Davis, and Straus, forgetting the coin in the air, let it fall to the ground. With the almost human evasiveness of a dollar, the coin rolled along the sidewalk and gracefully sought a resting place in the unoccupied area at the base of an electric light pole.

Straus made immediate offer of ten cents' reward for the recovery of his dollar and no questions asked, and after much lifting and probing with a piece of wire Chief of Detectives McDuffie added another dollar to his cap by restoring the "cart-wheel" to its lamenting owner amid the cheers of the assembled populace.
